授業内容 Course Description		This is an introductory course in Political Science. This course will introduce you to three topics: (1) the major themes of Political Science (e.g., the origins of modern state, democratization, authoritarianism, political culture, civil society, and political participation); (2) the major concepts used in Political Science (e.g., government, governance, power, authority, state, democracy, authoritarianism, nation, and nationalism); and (3) the methodologies political scientists use to evaluate rival theories (e.g., qualitative and quantitative approaches). By comparing how political systems develop and function in different countries, we will theorize about the historical development and future trajectories of domestic politics in the various parts of the world.
到達目標(授業の狙い) Objectives		The main objective of this course is to familiarize students with the analytical tools needed to study politics cross-nationally, as well as acquaint them with the political arrangements of various regions of the world. Using theories and analytical methods developed in Political Science, we will study cases such as Germany, France, the United Kingdom, Sudan, Kenya, Russia, and China.
授業方法 Method of Instruction		This course is based on lectures and class discussion. Class discussion is your opportunity to raise questions about the lecture or the readings, to bounce ideas off one another, and to think carefully about the texts' relation to issues raised in lecture.
準備学習 Class Preparation		Students are expected to attend all lectures, to complete all of the reading on a timely basis, and to be prepared to summarize and discuss them in class.
教科書 Text		Rod Hague and Martin Harrop, Political Science: A Comparative Introduction, 7th ed. (Palgrave, 2013). In addition, we will be reading journal articles and book chapters. All of these items will be made available online in PDF format.
